- => Protein bar might come in handy. Make sure tag them along

Best time for Langtang Valley Trek: To enjoy the Langtang Trek to its fullest, you must pick the perfect time. Only then, you would get all the vistas (thriving rhododendron, lush forests, smiling Himalayas) with your safety in check. Here we will provide you pinpoint of this trek in different climatic season, then you can decide for yourself which season is the perfect season for you. Weather is a crucial attribute to check up upon earlier to travel. Best season to trek: The clear sky, pleasant weather, safe trekking routes are some of the factors that make Spring season and Autumn season the perfect time to go for a trek in Langtang valley. The weather conditions are pretty predictable and stable however, there might be slight fluctuations due to global warming. The steep trails are dry and risk-free. The picturesque views of Himalayas alongside the pleasant scent of flourishing rhododendron flowers make spring slightly even perfect time. The only problem might be as it's a peak season all the lodges, teahouses or homestay might be busy making it difficult to find accommodations. The autumn is perfect vivid views too. However, if you want to walk along blooming rhododendron forest, go for spring. Gist- Autumn and Spring are the best seasons. If sights of blooming rhododendron are equally important to you as panoramas of Himalayas, opt for Spring. Other seasons and their highlights: The steep trails of Langtang Valley Trek won't be safe during the time of rainfalls. So don't pick the summer/monsoon season for this or any other trek as much as possible. It will be too risky to walk in the trekking route during this season, plus the air is humid to further add to the difficulty. The winter season will have snow in high altitudes. You will have to carry heavy winter clothes if you decide to trek during winter. On the positive light though, the views of the Himalayas are pretty vivid during this time of the year. Necessary permits Trekking routes generally require permits for entry and exit. You have to get those from Nepal Tourism Board (NTB). All your necessary permits will be managed by Himalayan Holylands Treks and Expedition. If you are keen to know more about it, read below- TIMS standing for Trekkers Information Management System is a permit that you need for this or any other trekking route in Nepal. This helps in locating a trekker in case they are lost, or in case of tremors, very harsh weather etcetera. The cost- => For independent trekkers- Rs. 2000 (green card)

- => For trekking traveling with the guide as a group - Rs. 1000 (blue card)

As mentioned before as well, permits will be handled by us or any other travel agency if you are trekking through them. More about the Langtang Valley trek: The Langtang Valley Trek holds an ability to become a cultural tour and nature wise apposite trek. This popular trekking destination was harshly affected by the earthquake, reducing the number of national as well as international trekkers in the years to come. After a lot of effort put on by the locals, this beautiful valley is once more being explored by many travel lovers.
