Trisuli river rafting is the most popular rafting in Nepal. Almost half of all raftings in Nepal are done in in Trisuli river. This is known as white water rafting. This river is located at the west of Kathmandu valley on the way to Pokhara and Chitwan. Although we descend from Kathmandu valley, we can see a perfect mixture of natural scenery of hills, valleys, gorges and villages on the way. Our two days river rafting starts from Daraudi. We drive from Kathmandu in the morning after the breakfast to Daraudi. The river guide gives us a detail explanation about our whole rafting. We set the equipment for this thrilling rafting and start with enjoyment. There are some exciting parts during our rafting such as rapid fire, jumping from the cliffs. After three hours of rafting, we arrive for the lunch. The distance from Kathmandu to Trisuli river rafting spot is around 70 km. The actual rafting is from 3 hours to 6 hours. Despite of a popular one-day rafting package, you can choose the package of rafting from one to three days. You can also do this rafting while you are traveling to Pokhara or Chitwan from Kathmandu or vice versa. Mainly for the reason that the road which connects Kathmandu and Pokhara follows the entire length of Trishuli river.
